Tenure-track position in Actuarial Science

The School of Insurance and Economics, at University of International Business and Economics (UIBE) in Beijing of China is pleased to announce a search for a number of tenure-track positions at the rank of Assistant/Associate and Full Professor. The preferred areas of specialization are, but not limited to, Actuarial Science, Statistics, and Risk Management and Insurance.

UIBE ranks as one of China's top universities that specialized in Economics and Finance. The School of Insurance and Economics (<http://insurance.uibe.edu.cn>) at UIBE offers an exceptional environment for interdisciplinary research, teaching, and training in actuarial science and risk management. We have more than 650 undergraduate students and 300 graduate students pursuing degree programs in actuarial science, finance, and insurance science; and are currently supported by over 40 faculty members. Our mission is to provide qualitative education, cutting-edge research, and become an internationalized academia.

Typical compensation packages will include a competitive salary, research funds and housing allowances. The rank and salary of a successful candidate will be commensurate with his/her qualifications and research experience. For distinguished established professors, we offer highly competitive compensations above the market level. We warmly welcome applicants to share our further expansion. The anticipated start date will be August 2019.

The successful candidates must have or be expected to have a PhD degree by August 2019 in an area of actuarial science, statistics, mathematical finance or related fields. Junior candidates should display promising research capabilities. Senior candidates must have a strong research track record. Actuarial/insurance experience in industry, or collaborations with industry will be an asset. Also, we will conduct on-site interviews at the 2019 America Economics Association (AEA) annual conference in Atlanta.
